Abstract:

The article is an overview of the works of the Hague Conference on Private International Law, which celebrated its 125th anniversary in September 2018. It presents the beginnings of the Hague Conference, the adoption of its statute, including the changes introduced therein in connection with the accession of the European Union, as well as the list of its members and connected parties. The article lists all diplomatic sessions and all adopted conventions. It also explains how non-members may accede to Hague conventions and presents other endeavours of the Hague Conference, namely its publications, the INCADAT database, the iSupport project and current legislative projects, including the judgment project which will be finalised at the 22nd session.
